Greg Bokhart & Craig Schultz Join Joseph M. Day Company

Saginaw, Michigan, January 20, 2015: Kyle Gradowski, Service Manager for the Joseph M. Day Company announced the addition of Greg Bokhart and Craig Schultz to the field service team for the Boiler Service Group. Experienced in installation and maintenance of process boiler systems including steam, chemicals and others, they have strengths and skills in welding, pipe fitting and sheet metal which will be particularly useful serving the Joseph M. Day Company customers.

Greg's educational background includes Associate Degrees from Delta College in welding, pre-engineering and degree in Business Administration from Northwood University. His combined experiences in field service and supplemented by his well-rounded education, make him a terrific fit for Joseph M. Day Company. Recently he completed Power Flame Burner and Aerco Boiler factory service and startup training where he finished at the top of both classes.

Craig is certified by the Building Performance Institute in building envelopes and completed the HVAC program training with Associated Builders & Contractors. In addition, Craig completed studies at Delta College all of which add to his practical experience working on a variety of systems in varying buildings with diverse needs. His background adds to the broad based experience of the Joseph M. Day Company field service team.

An acknowledged expert in boiler equipment, combustion engineering and associated field service, the Joseph M. Day Company maintains a reputation for excellence among its customers. The company serves a variety of boiler users such as schools, hospitals and manufacturing facilities throughout Michigan. Having a reliable combustion engineering company managing customer projects is increasingly significant as customers shift from the mere purchase of a piece of equipment to a commitment to a project and a project team. Joseph M. Day Company professionals effectively integrate with the customer's team and stakeholders to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the entire project. It is Joseph M. Day Company's dedication, experience and knowledge that make them the preferred partner for these types of projects.
